Incubator for a New Story

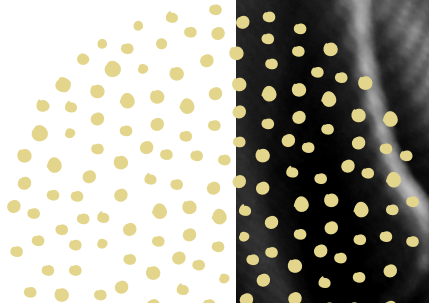

“By transforming ourselves, we transform the world around us”

We are a refreshing non-profit organization focused on adult education. We lead projects using an ecosystemic approach, supporting the development of a learning society and creating a safe space where individuals, communities and regions can flourish.

Through our programs, we help participants build confidence and a deeper sense of self. We create a culture based on open dialogue, collaborative partnerships, and a flexible network of healthy relationships.

Our educational projects include:

1

FUTURE LEADER

2

GUIDES
IN THE NETWORK

3

FAMILY IN DIALOGUE

“I have the courage to bloom and lead”

FUTURE LEADER is an immersive personal development programme for young leaders aged 21–38. Inspired by the sociodynamic counseling method, it helps participants understand deeper connections and strengthen their ability to lead themselves and others effectively.

Over four extended weekends spread throughout the year, participants engage in experiential activities focused on self-perception and self-management, strengthening psychological resilience, and the ability to live in balance and enjoy life.

“The region as a learning, healthy ecosystem”

The GUIDES IN THE NETWORK project is a living experiment.

We are creating a new structure, a learning network of guides, based on trust, continuous adaptation and flexibility. Our goal is to change people's attitudes, behaviour and actions, and to shift from central hierarchical management to self-management. We encourage participants to take their own initiative and share responsibility for the flourishing of the place they live in.

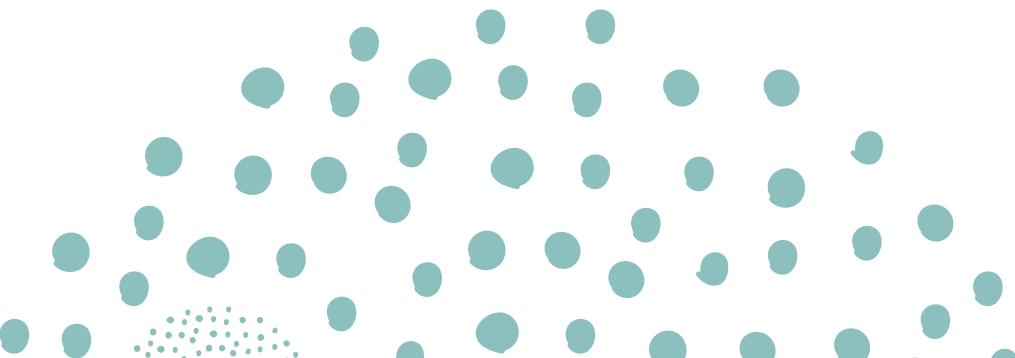

This five-year program brings together a group of mature adults for a series of experiential educational modules. We develop flexibility, overall resilience, and the ability to consciously guide the region through change. We also strengthen the capability to learn from every situation, adapt and change course when needed. At the same time, we support creative and interdisciplinary collaboration.

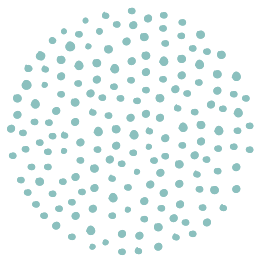

“Healthy relationships in a changing society”

The aim of the FAMILY IN DIALOGUE project is to design and test an appropriate form of educational programme during which parents are learning in the presence of their children. The content responds to the ongoing changes in society.

The pilot program brings together a group of 20 parents for a series of weekend modules combined with online webinars. Participants are learning the method of dialogic practice – a healing dialogue that improves intergenerational coexistence. They are also addressing the topic of digitalization and AI, and exploring healthy ways to handle technology in families.
